Monadnock United Way Welcomes Nour Habib, Marketing Specialist

Keene, NH –Nour Habib joined Monadnock United Way as marketing specialist earlier this month. Nour will promote our community’s successes in addressing this region’s most pressing needs for children, education, financial stability and basic needs.

“Nour brings seven years of journalistic experience to our team. Having covered the education, city and lifestyles beats for local and metropolitan news outlets, she is adept at translating complex issues into media that inspire people,” said Liz LaRose, president of Monadnock United Way. “Nour’s storytelling capabilities will shine a spotlight on the great work happening across all sectors to improve lives in our community. We are very pleased to welcome Nour to MUW.”

“I am so excited to join the team at Monadnock United Way,” Habib said. “I have always loved telling ‘people stories,’ as they say in journalism, and it is a privilege to have the opportunity to share the inspiring stories of the work being done in the region to ensure that no one in the community is ever forgotten.”

Prior to joining MUW, Habib spent a year as a freelance copy editor and proofreader for Society of Exploration Geophysicists, in Tulsa, Oklahoma. From 2011 to 2016, she was a staff writer for Tulsa World, in Tulsa, Oklahoma. During her tenure there, Habib covered urban, suburban and state education issues for two and a half years, city government for a year, and lifestyles and health for a year and a half. Habib began her career in journalism at The Broken Arrow Ledger, Broken Arrow, Oklahoma as news editor and education reporter. In summer 2008, Habib was a congressional intern for Congressman Dan Boren’s office in Washington, DC.

Habib has experience with United Way, serving on the Tulsa Area United Way’s Community Investments Cabinet in 2013, and covering stories about United Way partnerships at Tulsa World.

As an active member of the Tulsa community, Habib served as chair and committee member of Islamic Society of Tulsa’s Community Outreach Committee. She also served on the school board for Peace Academy. Habib is a member of Leadership Tulsa’s class of 2013.

Habib earned a B.A. in Journalism, emphasis in News-Editorial, with a double major in Political Science from Oklahoma State University.

Habib lives in Keene with her husband and daughter.
